

Publication of Lablearning Salt as part of the edition “Good practices in the field of youth”, edited by the professionals’ association of the youth policies.

20th June 2013

The new on-line platform of projects of good practices in the field of youth is already operational. At the presentation event, the theoretical support of the project —the book “Bones pràctiques en l'àmbit de la joventut” (Good practices in the field of youth)— was also released. This publication describes 13 intervention proposals in Catalonia and explains the criteria determining its selection and the analysis process. The book serves as a consultation and reference guide for the professionals working with and for young people, or for those who are interested or expert in the youth field.

The Lablearning project was one of the 13 selected among more than 50 proposals.

The platform of good practices in the field of youth was created with the aim of being a living tool in which new experiences can be incorporated. Initially, it presents the selected projects of good practices and, to ensure that they can be consulted, it includes a search engine with different selection options, depending on the project’s management, scope of action and methodology.

This project —presented both in paper format and in virtual and collaborative format— has been driven by the Catalan Professionals' Association of the youth policies, and counts on the endorsement and collaboration of the Directorate General of Youth.

<http://www.joventut.info/bonespractiques/>

